Capabilities
EVAP System Tests <sup>1</sup> Test and locates leaks in the vehicle's fuel vapor recovery system. Also performs general purpose tests.	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	✓	You can use the "Smoke Pro™" or Mac Leak Attack™ for testing EVAP systems if you want to risk the potential hazards of adding oxygen to the system!! Smoke Wizard's™ advanced technology allows it to be used with inert gas for safer EVAP system testing, or shop air for other leak testing.
Leak Down Test (Pressure Decay) Diagnose small leaks and confirm the repair is complete	✓	✓	✓	Nope Cannot perform pressure/vacuum decay test & cannot verify repairs	Nope Cannot perform pressure/vacuum decay test & cannot verify repairs	Nope Cannot perform pressure/vacuum decay test & cannot verify repairs	Nope Cannot perform pressure/vacuum decay test & cannot verify repairs	Smoke Wizard™ does BOTH pressure and vacuum decay! Smoke Pro's™ and Mac Leak Attack's™ outdated design can't do vacuum decay which is required for natural vacuum decay testing. Chrysler, Ford, General Motors, Toyota & many others have vacuum self-test systems.

We were generous to put a check mark on Redline's EVAP column, when you consider they don't have the technology required by OEMs for EVAP testing. They also don't comply with SAE papers Redline Detection claims an "Air Safe" design, yet their machine delivers air using oxygen into the EVAP system and the lack an Auto Shut-Off Safety Solenoid. This could be dangerous! We have both the approved solution with dye and without dye. Toyota DOES NOT APPROVE THE USE OF BABY OIL!
